By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND, April 6.—The Indians, led by Harry Brecheen, president of the club, and Louie Seltzer, general manager, have agreed to let the Indians play in Mexico next year. The Indians' players and management were asked to meet with the Indians' president and the Indians' general manager at the Indians' office yesterday morning.

Indians' spokesman followed up his statement by saying that the Indians' players and management had been approached by the Indians' president and the Indians' general manager about the Indians' playing in Mexico. ## LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

DICKY'S eyes were shining with love and pride as he looked at his small daughter. And, indeed, I acknowledged, and acquited myself of prejudice, she was a vision to delight the eyes of any father.

Katherine had done a wonderful job, and how in the world she had accomplished it, I could not imagine. The miniature uniform of a trained nurse was authentic in cut and texture, and the little white cap looked as if it had been made for the child. The white shoes and stockings, I saw, were Faith's own. Katherine, of course, had had the opportunity to take them from the luggage while the child's grandmother was asleep.

Faith's bright hair was demurely hidden beneath the cap, but enough of it framed her lovely, winsome face to complete a picture which I wanted to preserve for our future remembering.

But first of all, I knew we must register the "amazement, admira-

Careful Decorating Adds to Home Comforts.

The manner in which a house through living room, dining room hall and bedrooms, it is not necessarily monotonous if it is done in a great measure exactly how much enjoyment the occupants get out of it. A home can have the advantage of adding a feeling of space to the interior of the house, be well built, well heated, and no matter how small it may be economical to maintain, but it is not altogether comfortable if it is decorated and furnished in a haphazard fashion. Fortunately it is easy to decorate in good taste as in bad taste. The only requirement is that you select a certain type of decoration and carry it out.

There are two very definite styles that are in general favor. One is a contrasting scheme which calls for striking effects in color and for excellent taste in odd pieces of furniture and in floor coverings. If you adopt this scheme, you must study your house, room by room, and be careful that your contrasts are not glaring and theatrical instead of striking and good-looking. You must refer to illustrations, particularly in color, which are available to every one, and match the best in your own home according to your own ability to pay for them.

One-Color Plan

The second scheme is that of one color. Some of the very best examples of good decorating are found where one color, in various shades, has been carried out

On the other hand, when you want to create an effect of spaciousness in a small room, you see that lines are horizontal, and you stress the lines that are running along with the floor and ceiling. In other words, you stretch out the limits of the room by inference. As a good example, you might lay out two squares, each two inches square. In one, draw lines a quarter-inch apart vertically, in the other draw lines a quarter-inch apart horizontally.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—BY ROGER C. WHITMAN—

ENAMEL CHIPS

Q. Our home is three years old and the woodwork is finished in Almond enamel. I have been waxing all of this woodwork twice yearly because I thought it would look well and hold up much longer. Now my chair rails and cupboards (the doors mostly) are chipping considerably. Was all of my waxing in vain? What can you suggest?

A. Either the woodwork was improperly painted—that is, the first coat was not properly thinned—or the paint used was hard and brittle. In the first instance the paint would not adhere properly to the wood and when struck with a hard object chipping would occur. The same will happen when the paint film is hard and brittle. The remedy is to remove the old finish and refinish with a good grade of enamel, following directions as given by the manufacturer. Waxing will not cause enamel to chip.

STICKY PAINT

Q. I painted my kitchen chairs an ivory color. But the paint has not dried and the surfaces are a bit sticky. How can I harden the paint?

A. If you painted over waxed or greasy surfaces there is no way to harden the paint. It should be removed. Poor quality paint might be hardened by sponge the surfaces with turpentine, and even in very cold water will do the trick.

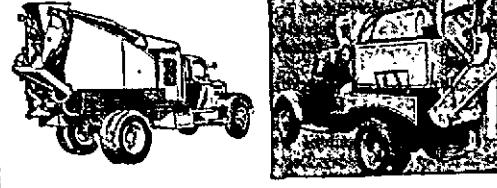

Keep them about six or eight inches apart and make them quite a bit higher than the horizontal square. This optical illusion idea is followed out in decorating.

All decorating is expensive, and it is not an item on which to waste your money. There are many homes in the country where the owner has seen fit to live with bare, undecorated walls for months before he made up his mind about his decorating scheme. We are in favor of the idea. Use with good room for shade, do not hurry. Search and study, look over the decorating scheme and ideas that you can find, and decide on one that fits your home and carry it out to completion. Use whatever pieces of furniture you have, always remembering that refinishing is not too expensive when you can sandpaper and paint yourself. Discard nothing until you are assured that it will not fit into your adopted scheme of decorating.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES
O. S. U. Extension Floriculturist

Q. I want to thank you very much for your kind favors and submit if I may some further questions.

1. Can snapdragon seedlings be developed from seed sown in flats in November or December, and left in the open garden through winter?

2. Will stems of blooming stems cut from hybrid tea roses have any effect on root development?

3. Is it desirable to carry snapdragons through the first winter, and if so, can they best be protected, and about when should such protection be applied in Baltimore area?

4. When only commercial dried cow manure is available, what is the maximum proportion by volume safe to use in soil in which roses are planted?

5. What is the proper depth to cover "union" of budded roses with soil and what will be the results if covered four or five inches above soil level?

6. About when should Tropon treatment of roses begin in spring, and about when discontinued (Baltimore area), and what further treatment should be given after this, other than hilling soil about plants for winter protection?—H. L. B., Baltimore 16, Md.

7. Snapdragons seed sown outdoors in the late fall so that it does not have a chance to germinate should come up perfectly satisfactorily this spring. Or, if you have sown it in late August or early September, the seedlings would normally live over winter.

Newly planted hybrid tea roses and other large-flowered roses should have practically no foliage cut off the first season when cutting flowers. After that, if the roses are growing satisfactorily, it will not seriously injure them to take off a sufficient amount of foliage with each flower so that it may be used as a cut flower. There is usually ample foliage on the plant to carry on the manufacture of food unless you fail to spray on a regular basis so that black spot and mildew defoliate the plant.

Although snapdragons will occasionally live over winter and in a relatively mild climate such as yours, do it fairly regularly, they are not reliable for bloom the following spring. If you attempt to do this I would suggest that they be mulched with straw, hay, evergreen, or oak leaves for the winter so that a certain amount of air might get to the plant.

If I could only get commercial dried cow manure, I believe I would rather buy peat moss and a complete commercial fertilizer to get a little more for my money. If you have purchased dry dried cow manure you can use it at the rate of three to five pounds for 160 square feet of soil surface.

In planting budded roses just budded portion should be put just at or beneath the surface of the soil. If you plant it deeper than the root will be too deep for proper aeration and growth and you may have more difficulty in separating suckers from the desirable growth.

If you plant too far above the surface it will be easier to dig and nothing but the stem will be left.

Dusting or spraying of roses should start as soon as your leaves are fully developed. May I suggest that you look into a new dust called "All Purpose Garden Dust" put out by DuPont company? This contains ferric which, we believe, is the best material for control of black spot on roses.

Q. Will you kindly write me what kind of shrub or plant I can use for a screen I want to build as an outdoor furnace and we have close neighbors. We would like something that would grow fast and make a close screen. Our vegetable garden is in back of us and we have close neighbors on either side—G. D., Martinsville, O.

A. There are a number of shrubs that you will find very satisfactory for a compact screen, one being a small tree such as redbud, English maple, Russian olive or Washington horn.

Our bulletin "Beautifying Your Home Grounds" will give additional suggestions for developing this spot.

Hunger in World Rated As Threat Equal To Hitler

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

There is a hidden threat in the world food shortage which is not leading a good many folk in the western hemisphere as they endeavor to estimate the dangers involved.

We know that thousands are dying in the Orient from hunger. This is concrete evidence and leaves no doubt about the gravity of the position in that part of the globe. But the fact that there hasn't been much starvation in Europe yet is having a tendency to give the impression that after all, the situation there isn't desperate. Well, we shouldn't let this fool us. Having just returned from several months' tour of Europe, there's no question in my mind about the threat of the all-but-empty grain bins in many areas. Director Laskeroff of the UNRRA says 200,000,000 people face starvation in Europe alone, and even if you could have that figure it still would justify the editorial assertion of the London Daily Herald that "as a menace to civilization, hunger today is as potent as was Hitler yesterday."

What we have to recognize is that starvation is cumulative. Folks don't die of hunger in a day. My old friend Mahatma Gandhi has staged many hunger-strikes one of which ran three weeks and he still is doing business at the old stand. And the effects of starvation is much slower. If even a small amount of nourishment is available.

That's what is happening in some parts of Europe.

Actually, of course, there have been innumerable deaths already due directly or indirectly to malnutrition. And Mr. LaGuardia tells us the "unless we can ship large supplies of wheat for delivery this month in Europe, there will be mass starvation deaths in Poland, Yugoslavia, Greece and Italy." The position is bad, too, in Austria, Germany, France and Holland.

Austria has had a break of luck in the Soviet Union's withdrawal of most of its demands for land which the Austrians needed for food growing in the Russian occupied zone. The Muscovites had claimed some 125,000 acres and this has now been cut to 30,000.

Reverting to the Daily Herald's assertion that hunger is as potent a menace to civilization as was Hitler it requires little imagination to recognize the truth of this statement. If Europe arrived at mass starvation, we should see a leveling of nations which would know no limits.

A stepped-up job development program, including on-the-job training for veterans, was stressed at a meeting of 24 branch managers of the U. S. employment service from 18 Ohio cities, at Hotel Harding yesterday.

COVER RURAL AREAS IN CANCER DRIVE

Entire County Joins in Nation-wide Campaign.

Junior Chamber of Commerce opened its cancer campaign in outlying districts of Marion county today, placing coin boxes, posters and literature in all towns and villages outside Marion.

Efforts were being made to contact rural organizations and clubs in stressing the need for raising $35,000 in Marion county's part in a nationwide campaign against cancer.

In a letter to Don H. Ebbert, Ohio state treasurer and state chairman of the drive, Eric A. Johnson, national chairman, pointed out that $12,000,000 will be needed this year to make an all-out attack against cancer. Mr. Johnson said the disease was taking the lives of one out of six persons, including about 200 children annually.

In outlining the purpose of the campaign for local solicitors, the national chairman stated the following topics: determine where anyone can go to make sure they are free from cancer; modern X-ray equipment; more hospital provisions for cancer patients; education of the public as to cancer's danger signals and early diagnosis of treatment and visiting nurses and medical service for patients in the home.

SATURDAY, APRIL 6, 1941

Army Day

ON THE first postwar Army Day, the United States has disorganized what military historians will call one of the most powerful fighting forces ever created.

It has been unable to decide on a policy to salvage enough of its wartime strength to meet the demands of ordinary prudence in a still unsettled world.

There is a cool and systematic effort afoot at home, disguised as a crusade for the liberation of the G. I. from the "officer caste," to undermine discipline in the least-disciplined army in existence.

Millions of young men lately returned from service in the army range from 100 per cent critical to 10 per cent enthusiastic about their experiences. At the top of the armed forces, generals and admirals are unable to agree on the proper composition of the means of national security. Meanwhile, the first breath-taking disclosures of waste and graft in the late war are beginning to come to light. The army, in other words, has been reduced to its peace-time status, which is that of a necessary evil wide open to criticism from all sides, always eligible for cutting to the bone in economy drives, last government function to get a decent break from politicians—and, of course, the thing everybody depends on when danger threatens. This Army Day is going to be more typical than it is comfortable to admit.

Challenge to Cancer

THE GREATEST single step yet taken in the fight to widen humanity's margin of security against cancer is the American Cancer Society's campaign to raise $12,000,000.

Like the previously organized efforts to reduce the hazards of tuberculosis and polio, the cancer campaign is an appeal for self-protection. Even less than the other scourges of human health, cancer is no respecter of persons. Neither money nor influence can furnish immunity.

Perhaps nothing ever will furnish immunity, but a cooperative effort over a period of years could produce a kind of cooperative security that is not yet available to the ordinary run of cancer victims. That is the American Cancer Society's purpose.

The amount to be raised this month is not great. Compared with the vast sums spent on war, which actually is less dangerous than cancer, $12,000,000 is a trifling down payment on the security a cooperative program to fight cancer can provide.

What Next, Little Men?

ONE of the curious byproducts of the United Automobile Workers convention in the public's realization that the General Motors strike was used to help the candidacy of one of the union's officials for the presidency, against the counsel of other officials and contrary to the advice of the head of the CIO. Another is the revelation that the union's demand for a look at the corporation's books never was intended to be anything more than a talking point—a way to put General Motors "over a barrel." One of the things the union claimed was that the books would prove what the department of commerce had asserted, that wage rates could be increased as much as 24 per cent without any increase in prices. This assertion recently was called back by Secretary of Commerce Wallace, who explained that it shouldn't have been taken seriously, because an obscure economist had made it, so sorry and excuse it please.

What do you suppose the little men will think up next to stir up the animals and keep everybody too excited to wonder why it seems necessary to stir up the animals in the first place?

Hitlers Are Born, Not Made

THE THEME that hunger makes Hitlers, a favorite with European famine relief publicists, is first-rate emotional propaganda—but ridiculous. Every American soldier who entered Germany during and after the climax of the war realized that the natives were the best-fed people he had seen.

In contradiction of Nazi lies about Germany's desperate need for food, Germans were well-fed before the beginning of the war. During the war itself, they deliberately starved captive populations and appropriated food for themselves.

It was German youth fattened in Norway who returned to that neutral country to seize it in the name of their paranoid führer. It was Fritz Kuhn, pot-bellied bundist, who led the Nazi movement in the United States. When did Hermann Goering ever do any starving?

Hunger does not make Hitlers. The type is variously born or developed by diseased thinking. The thing that makes Hitlers is the ability to enter into conspiracy to starve others, which was the dominant characteristic of Germany in its Hitlerian era.

Reece a Natural Choice

He Comes Nearest To Representing All Republicans.

THE election of B. Carroll Reece as chairman of the Republican National Committee suggests to many of us that by a mythical "Old Guard" he was elected because, among the available candidates, no one seemed to represent the organization Republicans.

"Old Guard" is a one-time successful chairman, told Wendell Willkie, whom he was candidate for president in 1940, he was looking for a party point, what the essentials of the party should be. "He must," said Mr. Hayes, "be a man to whom all the million or more local political leaders can look up to and understand. They must look up through the long hierarchy of the party and see at the top their kind of man who speaks their language and sympathizes with their problems."

This was sound and experienced advice. Innovation, reform and majority criticism can be left to candidates. But the chairman must be neutral and regular.

Those who say that the Democratic party, under Mr. Roosevelt, followed a different policy miss the whole point. Mr. Roosevelt himself has an amateur, a creation of history. But his various

AND ALL THEY WANT IS A TWO-PANTS SUIT

The Custom Tailors Guild of America has announced its nominations for the country's ten best-dressed men.

Harold Stassen's reservations about the Reece record in congress will not be serious. Mr. Stassen must, if he has ambitions, keep a fairly good relationship with the national committee. He cannot fight it, if he is to be assured of plenty of delegates in 1948. He will go along. The Reece non-interventionist record in congress will not matter much. The chairman's job is to set up the machinery to elect any candidate. He has no duties connected with selecting a candidate and few in determining policies. Any leaning by him toward one or another of the aspirants would hurt the aspirant and Mr. Reece as well.

The Reece job is to build a harmonious and efficient party organization on the good foundations laid by Herbert Brownell. The country needs a strong Republican party, and the new chairman has the capacity to lead it in the two and a half years ahead.

Finland's Burden of Defeat

Country Begins To Show Signs of Recovery.

By ROBERT N. STURDEVANT

Helsinki—Finland today looks better than it did a year ago when the armistice with Russia was only a few months old. Shop windows then boarded up now gleam with glass. Empty shelves are not so numerous in the capital's biggest department store, Stockmann's, though the merchandise is largely wooden products.

Travelers from Stockholm still must cross the icy Gulf of Bothnia to Turku by boat because the Russian control commission will not allow airline traffic between the Swedish and Finnish capitals.

But Turku-to-Helsinki trains run on schedule and traveling time has been cut from eight to six hours since I last made the trip in March, 1945. Only one train goes each way daily, but it has a dinner, a luxury in Finland.

Only people of means can afford travel, and their attitude toward Russia is unchanged—distrust and fear. But they are also stubborn. They still feel they can have their comfortable capitalism again.

A Finnish inventor was returning from a business trip to Sweden. He had invented a seamless paper box that could be molded into most any shape. He preferred to produce it outside his native land rather than where his advantage might benefit the Soviet Union.

Today's traveler in Finland senses an atmosphere of industry. There is almost no involuntary unemployment.

Politically the nation is guided by aging President Juho K. Paasikivi, wartime advocate of peace with Russia, who says, "We must keep the confidence of our great neighbor to the east." Though a product of conservatism and former bank president, he accepts the idea that Finland is a small nation in the Russian sphere of influence.

This will be Finland's most difficult year with respect to reparations. In eight years she must pay

Baseball Song Revised

TWO clubrooms with a bar will be a feature of the remodeled Yankee Stadium at baseball games this summer. They will be open to purchases of boxes.—News item.

Take me out to the ball game—
Take me out there in the seat—
Make it chubby and extra gay—
Let me root from a cabaret—
Take me out to the ball game—
Get a table up front—
For it's one, two, three drinks and out
At the old ball park.

Take me out to the ball park—
Make my visit de luxe—
Nix on peanuts and crackerjack—
I want wine and each new smart crack—
Put me there with the smart set—
Let me cheer 'em with swank—
For it's one, two, three toasts and out
At the old ball park.

Take me out to the ball game,
Let me have a club badge—
Put me there by a mirrored wall—
Let me drink to the cry "Play all"—
I crave chromium fixtures—
I like red leather chairs—
On its one, two, three songs and out
At the old ball game.

THAT'S SHOW BUSINESS

Dick Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein are "Oklahoma" and "Carousel" of their own writing on Broadway, and with a couple of other plays as well, are now on the road with a musical by the competition's Music and Drama by Irving Berlin, book by Herbert and Dorothy Fields. How times change! For a musical comedy book and song team to do any producing would have been heretical a few years back. And to one to produce the work of other book and song teams was stuff out of the dream world.

AIN'T IT SO?

How wonderful, the radio,
I'm sure I couldn't spare;
The stuff that I can't listen to
Is always on the air!

Bicyclists were warned to obey the rules to keep down accidents in a poster issued by the Automobile Club of New York today.

Come, come, boys, stop kidding! Those that tear through the red lights, jump the pants in midstream, cut corners short, do 20 miles an hour through crowded streets and the full cooperation of the police are not bicycles.

I want the following books: "Meet Me in '41," "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," "The Brick Moon," "Xit and Doe," "The Silver City"; will swim and other perennials. Mass. MILE—Year Magazine.

Would you give us a couple of geraniums? "The Virginian" and "Quo Vadis"?

Bill Mauldin, the cartoonist, says G.I.s are having the right to call attention to officers who are inefficient. Go easy there, Bill! Mighty officers seem efficient and correct in all decisions. Some of our greatest commanders have made bad mistakes and lost many battles. Where would George Washington be in history if the Minute Men had demanded a change? And how long would Grant have lasted?

Medals To Prove It

WHEN someone gets a solid idea, it deserves our solid support.

The following idea was laid at our feet yesterday by a demobilized member of Uncle Sam's formerly formidable civilian army. The patriot went into action as a buck private. He came out, years later, wiser in the ways of the enlisted man. In an approximation of his words, this is the idea:

Uncle Sugar figured out how to decorate darned near everybody in the war, especially officers. When he started handing out medals to master-minds who never left the states, who fought the war behind armored desks, and other electronic equipment, nobody in the Army or the Department of Commerce, they've lost it.

Commerce recently announced that this new machine, which turned up in Stuttgart, Germany, and soon would be demonstrated publicly by Com-

BALTIMORE, Md.—When they

Felix Robert Mendelsohn, a grand nephew of the famous composer, is a principal cellist in the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra and he prepared recently to give his first Baltimore recital. The musician, who is also a composer, was forced by Hitler to leave Germany.

BRITISH PW'S JOLT HITLER

Failure To Draw Them Into Quisling Army Called His "Biggest Flop."

By CHARLES WIGHTON
United Press Correspondent
BRITISH HEADQUARTERS
Germany—Hitler's biggest flop was the attempt to form British Quisling army from prisoners of war and pro-Nazis.

The notorious British Free Corps never had an operational strength of more than eight men. Only 50 had any association with the corps at any time.

Details of the failure are included in official British intelligence reports. According to the Germans one of the principal reasons for their failure was the natural caution and suspicion of the British.

For English Front Only

The original organization was called St. George's Legion. It was started in 1943 and John Andrew was recruited as a traitor last year, toured POW camps and German government camps in Germany and France trying to recruit British to join the legion. He said the legion would fight Bolsheviks and would never be used in the west.

America claimed that five colonels and a brigadier already had joined the unit which was at brigade strength, that the unit had the support of the British government and that joining would lead to promotion. Prisoners were offered an inducement of better conditions.

By the end of 1943 the name was changed to British Free Corps which was hoped would have a greater appeal to Irish and colonial prisoners.

The uniform was ordinary German field gray with the Union Jack embroidered on the left arm. Five per cent of the motor drivers are career or reckless, declared. He told the pupils that accidents could be almost entirely eliminated if drivers would follow these four simple rules: Approach all rail-highway crossings with your vehicle under control, prepared to stop if necessary. Look and listen. If the view is obscured, use extra precautionary measures. Know the way is clear before attempting to pass over the crossing. Obey the traffic rules and caution others to do so. Support public enforcement agencies in their campaign for safe driving on the highway and at grade crossings.

MEET TRUMAN'S NEW NAVAL AIDE. Commodore J. K. Vardaman, left, who resigned as naval aide to President Truman to become a member of the Federal Reserve Board, congratulates his successor and former assistant, Capt. Clark M. Gifford, a former St. Louis attorney. (International)

Pupils Hear Safety Talks

Talks on accident prevention on highways and particularly at grade crossings were given by D. E. Mumford, of New York City, assistant safety agent of the New York Central Railroad, in talks given at the public and parochial schools here Thursday and Friday. The visit here was a part of the program launched by the railroad company to prevent or reduce accidents in which the railroads and the general public are mutually concerned.

Mr. Mumford and his party, W. G. Vossler, trainmaster, and Sgt. R. W. Smith, of the New York Central police force, both of California, were joined here by Frank C. Robinson, local agent for the company, for the two-day tour of the schools. Talks were given in assemblies at Harding High, Vernon, Edison and Central Junior High schools on Thursday, and at St. Mary Parochial school, Silver street, Glenwood and Oakland schools yesterday. Mr. Mumford will return to Marion April 23, when he will be a guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary club, and will conclude the safety talks in the training schools in the city.

Covers N. Y. C. System

Mr. Mumford is one of a group of speakers presenting "safety" talks in towns and cities over the entire New York Central railroad system. In the last two months he has spoken in more than 200 schools and contacted more than 300,000 pupils.

Pointing out that substantial progress has been made in reducing crossing accidents during the last 20 years, greater progress can yet be made, he stated. Seventy-two per cent of these accidents occur at crossings where motor drivers have a clear and unobstructed view of the approaching train, and a substantial majority occurs at crossings which not only have the standard warn-negotiate an oil concession so long as Russian troops were in the country, yet announced yesterday an agreement on making future concessions. Even while their case was before the council "they were all the time negotiating," he said.

The council, whose last previous session was held Thursday, when it accepted a Russian assurance of troop withdrawals from Iran, was in week-end recess today and will not meet again until Tuesday.

Egyptian Delegate Mahmoud Hassan Pasha ended speculation about reports that he would make a early appeal against the presence of British troops in Egypt by saying he hoped the success of current British-Egyptian negotiations would make such action unnecessary.

The negotiations are under way in Cairo and London.

NAMED IN SPY PLOT. Former joint-secretary of the Canadian Munitions Assignment Committee, J. E. The report disclosed that Russian secret police operated in Canada long before July, 1943.

Stork Club on Bill at Marion

Betty Hutton and Barry Fitzgerald Star in Picture Sunday, Monday.

"The Stork Club" starring Betty Hutton, Barry Fitzgerald and Don DeFore, and "The Notorious Lone Wolf" with Gerald Mohr and Janis Carter will be shown Sunday and Monday at the Marion theater.

The former tells of the amazing things which happen to a girl after she rescues a millionaire from drowning. The plot of the latter picture is concerned with the disappearance of a rare jewel.

"Diamond Horseshoe" starring Betty Grable and Dick Haynes, and "And Then There Were None" with Barry Fitzgerald, Walter Huston and Louis Hayward will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday.

A musical in technicolor, the former tells the story of a father's ambition for his son to become a doctor, the son's revolt, and of the tangle which is finally solved. The story in the latter picture is a murder mystery in which ten persons who had turned to killing, one by one, until only two of a party on the lonely island are left.

"Dick Tracy" starring Morgan Conway, Anne Jeffreys and Mike Mazurki, and "Texas Panhandle" with Charles Starrett as the Durango Kid will be shown Thursday through Saturday.

Dick Tracy, played by Morgan Conway in the former picture, is kept busy when a villain, Splitface, played by Mike Mazurki, starts on a campaign of revenge against fourteen people who were responsible for sending him to prison. The latter is another in the series of the Durango Kid pictures in which he breaks up a gang of bandits.

Double Feature

Friday and Saturday a double feature will also be shown. The pictures will be "Wildfire" starring Bob Steele, and "A Boy, a Girl, and a Dog" starring Jerry Hunter, Sharyn Moffett, and the dog, Lucky.

The story of "Wildfire" is of a great brown stallion, king of the wild horses. It tells how, in gratitude to two men who saved him from death, he risks his own life and his freedom to save them from harm at the hands of outlaws.

The latter picture tells of two youngsters who live in a hotel where animals are definitely not allowed. They run into trouble with the management when they adopt a stray pup which they think is an ideal pet.

Emotional Conflict

Few parents realize how all-important happiness is for the little child. Just as his growing body needs sunlight and fresh air, so his developing personality requires the atmosphere of love.

But love means different things to people, and parents generally seem to have a tendency to confuse it with pride. This is a mistake which is completely disruptive of child-happiness because it spurs parents to demand more than the child can give.

A child cannot be forced into his various stages of growth. His nature must develop slowly from within and unfold gently like the unfolding leaf.

The child who lacks or who is pushed beyond his native capacities is likely to develop emotional conflicts. And emotional disturbances are reflected not only in deep-rooted personality defects, but in actual physical symptoms similar to those of disease.

Sometimes there are grave behavioral problems as well... bed-wetting, dirt eating, etc. Repeated twitching of certain muscles, and a great deal of crying at night.

According to Dr. Herbert C. Miller, of Yale University School of Medicine, repeated attacks of headache in the absence of eye-strain, sinus infection, migraine and certain other disorders, are usually produced by conflict of the emotions or disturbing situations for which the child cannot find a ready solution.

He says, also, that attacks of pain over the heart lasting for a short time and accompanied by breathlessness may occur in children who have been pushed beyond their abilities by their parents. Sometimes, they may develop because a child has been forced to assume responsibilities too great for one of his years. Another cause is a feeling of insecurity because of disturbed home conditions or a feeling of not being loved.

Perhaps the most common symptom due to emotional conflicts is pain in the abdomen. Such attacks of pain, even when accompanied by vomiting and constipation, may merely be an attempt on the part of the child to draw attention to himself.

In trying to determine just what is producing the emotional conflict responsible for the many symptoms, it is necessary not only to
